DUTTON CHEERFUL AFTER SUICIDE

Whistled, Sang and Ate a Hearty Breakfast After Finding Bodies of His Wife and Child.

Ellenville, April 13.—Coroner Kelly held an inquest on the death of Mrs. William F. Dutton and child, on Monday afternoon at the Ellenville village hall. District Attorney Cunningham conducted the examination of the witnesses. Several letters left by Mrs. Dutton were put in evidence. Dr. James C. Coles, Myron H. Wood and Dr. Harry C. Derby gave evidence as to the condition of the bodies after death, cause of death, etc.,

Stephen Salli, the hired man of Dutton told of occurrences the night before and of the morning after the crime and suicide had been committed. He swore that after Dutton had fed the chickens he went to the house and in a short time returned to the barn and told Salli to come to the house with him. They went upstairs where the bodies were found. That Dutton on reading a letter written by Mrs. Dutton and left in the room said apparently about some feature of the letter, "Let it go to hell." Dutton told Salli that everything was all right and there was nothing to be afraid of. That after they went down stairs Dutton whistled and sang and ate a hearty breakfast. Then he started for Ellenville. He told Salli when asked the reason for the trouble that she wanted money to go to Colorado which he would or could not give her and because he refused to let her take the child. Salli said Mrs. Dutton was writing letters when he went to bed the night before and that Dutton was on the lounge and that he thought that Dutton had stayed there all night as he was dressed the same on Sunday morning.

Hubert Kelly swore that he offered Dutton a place in the Fantinekill cemetery in which to inter the bodies, but this was refused. That a short time time before the tragedy, Mrs. Dutton called on him at Napanoch on her way to Kingston and told him of her troubles. That she found Dutton impossible to live with and that she was planning to leave him again. Street rumors regarding rough work done in covering the box at the burial were set at rest by evidence given by Augustus Schaffer, who represented the undertaker and by Mr. Kidney who helped with the work.

As the handwriting of Mrs. Dutton was well established, there was no evidence put in regarding it. Coroner Kelly adjourned the inquest until the afternoon of April 26th, at the same place when his findings will be placed on record.

KRONPRINZ WILHELM LEAKING BADLY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newport News, Va., April 13.—Three weeks at least—possibly more—was required to make the German auxiliary cruiser Kronzprinz Wilhelm seaworthy. This has been determined by the repair survey now under way. Marine engineers who have inspected the hull of the searaider declared today that the Kronprinz Wilhelm would be unable to leave before the end of April if Captain Thierfelder carries out his announced intention of quitting port.

Water is still pouring into the hull of the German ship through crevices between plates started by the terrific strain of her long career in heavy seas. The vessel's pumps are kept working night and day and continuous streams of water pour from her scuppers.

The boilers are in very bad shape and will have to be completely overhauled, to say nothing of defects that may appear when the ship goes into dry dock. Permission for the cruiser to enter dry dock probably will be granted tomorrow or as soon as Collector Hamilton has received Capt. Thierfelder's official estimate of the time he will need to stay in American waters.

It became known today that the Austrial cruiser Australia is expected to join British ships off the capes in the near future. The Australia was hunting for the Kronprinz Wilhelm in South American waters when the German ship put into Newport News. While officers of the Kronprinz and the interned Prinz Eitel Friedrich refuse to discuss the matter, it is reported that Captain Thierfelder knew the Australia was on his trail and sped northward to escape her.

The Australia probably will relieve the Berwick or Essex off the coast. With her speed she could easily overtake the Kronprinz if that vessel left port, while the other British ships probably would not be swift enough.

Rehearsal Tonight.

This evening there will be a rehearsal of the Spring Musical Festival at St. Mary's Hall at 7:45 o'clock, promptly. All enrolled members of the chorus from the downtown, Port Ewen and middle section of the city are urged to be present. GERMANY THREATENS BRITISH PRISONERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Amsterdam, April 13.—Germany has protested through the neutral government of the United States against the treatment accorded by England to the captured crews of German submarines, threatening to take retaliatory measures against English officers imprisoned in Germany.

In a note sent by Foreign Minister von Jagow on Sunday to Ambassador Gerard the former asserted that the treatment accorded to the captured crews of the U. 12 and U. 8 was contrary to international law and asking that Mr. Gerard make arrangements for a member of the American embassy at London to make a personal investigation.

Referring to British charges that the Germans failed to rescue those on board vessels sunk by submarines, the note says:

"The inference that rescues were intentionally neglected can be denied with horror."

SIMPSON LANDS ON POLICE FORCE

James V. Simpson was appointed a member of the police force to succeed the late Policeman Johnston, at a meeting of the police board held on Monday evening, and will assume his duties the first of May. Shortly after the death of Mr. Johnston the police board applied for an eligible list from the local civil service commission who held an examination and submitted an eligible list containing the names of Mr. Simpson, James Lawrence and Egbert Soper. The police board after receiving the list were unable to agree upon the appointment and for some time past have been deadlocked over the selection of a patroiman. This deadlock was finally broken at the meeting on Monday.

The board also decided to install the Gamewell police signal system and the president and secretary were authorized to sign a contract with the company for the installation of the system. It is expected that the system will be installed and in working order this summer.

The board also disposed of considerable routine business before adjourning.

The new policeman is clerk of the board of election commissioners and under the Irwin administration was street superintendent. His appointment leaves a vacancy which the election board will undoubtedly fill before the first of the month.

The Senior basketball team of the Y. M. C. A., under the management of City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., with the able assistance of Physical Director Godfrey, has recently closed a highly successful season with a long string of victories to its credit and with only one defeat chalked up against it. BOY STEPPED IN FRONT OF AUTO

Kenneth Carson, the twelve year old son of Peter J. Carson, of Ten-Broeck avenue, was badly injured on Monday afternoon by the automobile owned by Watson M. Freer, Jr. The accident occurred at the corner of Albany and Manor avenues a little after five o'clock. At the time of the accident Mr. Freer was driving his car, and as he approached Albany and Manor avenues he saw several boys playing at the corner and gave the usual warning by sounding his horn several times, and as he passed the corner the Carson boy, evidently not seeing the automobile, ran into it and is supposed to have fallen under the rear wheels, and both legs were broken. The boy was taken home in Mr. Freer's automobile, and Dr. Frank Keator and Dr. J. R. Gillette were summoned, who cared for the boy's injuries. The injury was beyond the control of Mr. Freer and he is not blamed for the accident.

AUTOMOBILE TOW FOR EXCELSIORS

It is understood that arrangments are being completed to relieve the boys of Excelsior Hose Company from being forced to unduly exercise their legs by running to the engine house when the fire bell rings and pulling the fire truck to the fire, and that in the future they will be furnished with an automobile to pull the truck to and from the fire.

A few days ago Alderman Martin, foreman of the company, issued general orders to the active members of the company to report at the engine house when the fire bell rang and help pull the truck to and from the fire. This was due to the fact that the man who in the past had rented his horse to the company to pull the truck had sold the animal and the company had not been able to induce any one else to rent a horse for fire duty. Every time the horse was used for fire duty the owner was paid $3 by the board of fire commissioners.

Under the present arrangement it is expected to equip the fire truck so that an automobile can be hooked to it in place of a horse and when the company responds to a fire alarm the truck will be hauled to the fire behind the automobile. By this plan it is expected that the company will be able to be the first company on the scene after an alarm has been turned in.

RUSSO CONFESSES.

Same Gang That Killed Agent Cut O'Neil's Throat.

That the gang which murdered Omar Houghtaling at Highland Falls on March 18 is the same which cut the throat of Gordan O'Neil at West Park, who has been under care at the Kingston City Hospital for some time, has been the belief of the police and the county authorities for some time. Ever since the arrest of Antonio Russo, two days after the murder, he was held in close confinement and finally admitted that he stood guard while his companions shot the station agent and robbed the West Shore station. Now Russo has added to his confession and admits that he was also a member of the same gang which cut the throat of Gordon O'Neil at West Park. He says that he stood guard on a knoll while O'Neil was being attacked and that the men after cutting the man's throat put the bloody razor in O'Neil's pockets. This bears out the statement made by O'Neil when he was brought to the hospital that night.

CURE FOR LEPROSY.

Doctor From Siam Asserts He Has Discovered a Serum.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Francisco, April 13.—Claiming to have discovered an entirely new treatment for leprosy and announcing that he can cure the disease, which has baffled scientists and doctors for centuries, as easily as any other disease if it has not reached an advanced stage, Dr. Adolph H. Boehmer, medical adviser of the late King Cholaronkorn of Siam, arrived here today from the Orient. The doctor stated that his cure is a serum injection which will eventually drive the disease out of existence. Nearly every case that he has treated or which was handled under his direction, he stated, resulted in complete cures. His treatment, he said, is radically different from any of the present methods being used to give relief from the scourge.

Mrs. J. J. Smith has opened her summer home "Heartsease."

Miss Ada Cudney of New York city is home on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. Hubert Cudney, who is critically ill at the writing.

William Decker and family moved to their new home at Highland on Friday. They will be greatly missed by their many friends here. Mr. Decker will work for Frank Seeley of this place.

John Travis of Peekskill is visiting his brother, Pierre Travis.

Frank Coutant and family will move to the house vacated by William Decker.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, April 13.—A Sunday school convention will be held in the M. E. Church, Woodstock, Tuesday afternoon and evening, April 20. This convention is held under the direction of the Sunday School Association of the town of Woodstock. County Superintendent Rev. Mr. Gulick is expected to be present in the afternoon and make an address. In the evening the Rev. D. N. F. Blakeney of Pine Hill will give an address.

On Wednesday evening, April 21, the Rev. D. N. F. Blakeney of Pine Hill will give a lecture on the war in Europe, which lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides. These pictures were recently taken on the scenes of conflict by Underwood & Company of New York. Half the proceeds after the expenses are paid, will go to the church.

The Rev. Edgar Sutherland moved to Round Top, Greene county, where he is to supply the M. E. Church for a year. One of Doyle's trucks from Saugerties moved him.

Mrs. Margaret L. Lown, administratrix, has announced an auction to sell the effects of Jams A. Lown at the late residence of the deceased on Thursday, April 29, at 10 a. m. The above effects consist of a bedroom suit, tables, carpets, chairs, bureaus, book case and books, dishes, stoves, etc.

Oscar Mosher has sold his automobile to George Quick of Willow. He proposes to use it in his business of soliciting orders for and delivering trees.

One night last week some parties, supposed to reside in or near Woodstock, were smitten with insanity and pulled the rails from the standards along the state road below the village. Then the picket fence along the end of the hotel was entirely removed. The lamp post between the hotel and post office was removed and the lamp smashed. Such kind of insanity can be bought for so much a bottle and it always goes with the business of selling drink and with those who drink it. We wonder why the destruction mania did not strike the parties concerned in the places where the drink was purchased.

The Speer family from Boston are at their summer home between Woodstock and Bearsville. A new residence is to be built this summer on their property, it is reported.

Mrs. Longyear, who has been seriously ill, is somewhat improved.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, April 12.—A reception will be given in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Fyfe in the lecture room of the Ashokan M. E. Church on Friday night, April 16. Come and greet our new pastor.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold an all day sewing bee at the home of Mrs. Granville Weeks on Thursday, April 15.

The Rev. G. D. Fisher and family visited friends in this place last week.

ENGLAND CENSORS ALL THE WAR NEWS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 13.—England now controls all sources of the allies' war news not only in her own country, but also in Russia and France. The English censor is supreme.

A few weeks ago reports were current that a German submarine had cut the lines of the French cable Company running from France to the U. S. This was incorrect. England had taken the final step to shut off all news except that which passes through her censors' hands.

For several months the English government officials were irritated by the fact that considerable news from Petrograd and Paris reached America without passing through London. Some military secrets which the British war office had concealed were revealed by Paris and Petrograd dispatches.

This is now impossible. Dispatches from Petrograd to Paris can reach the United States only throuqn London. Dispatches from Paris have to go via London to the United States.

It is possible to get a war dispatch from Paris over the French cable but it has to go to the censorial clearing house in London first. This has resulted in several peculiar happenings.

The French Cable Company is owned by France. As a result of the arrangement made by Paris and London officials its traffic has been diverted to other lines because persons filing messages in Paris disliked the idea of having their dispatches sent to London and then back to France for final transmission to the U. S.

Wireless dispatches from Berlin to Sayville are still beyond British control.

Room For Improvement.

A certain estimable old gentleman is at all times worth listening to, though occasionally his grammar is scarcely perfect. He was dining on one occasion with the local squire, when, much to the disgust of his worthy host, a trifling error on the old gentleman's part was pounced upon and loudly repeated by the son and heir of the house. There was a painful silence, broken at length by the host.

"My son," he remarked quietly to the young fellow, "there are times, I admit, when our old friend's speech is a little peculiar. At such times you might be of mutual assistance to each other."

"In what way, sir?" asked the son.

"Well," was the severe rejoinder, "you might give Mr. X. a lesson or two in grammar, in return for which I have no doubt he would assist you to patch up the holes in your manners."—London Tit-Bits.

BED OF THE THAMES.

It Often Yields to Dredgers Relics of the Ancient Romans.

"Yes, sir," said the skipper of a Thames dredger as he wiped his grimy hands on the legs of his trousers, "there are many worse jobs than dredging. It is interesting and exciting work, too, for one never knows what the bucket scoops are going to pick up.

"Do we make any rich 'captures?' Occasionally we do, but of course we bring up more mud than anything else. But, personally, I believe that the bottom of the Thames is a small gold mine in disguise, but one that it is impossible to 'work.' A 'nugget' is brought up now and again, and a 'nugget' may mean a gold watch or coins.

"Some time back a bucket scoop brought to the surface a small sack, and this sack contained a number of watches, mostly minus the cases. Evidently they had been thrown into the river by thieves, who had no use for them.

"Human bones are brought to light at infrequent intervals, and so are old metal implements. Roman coins are fairly plentiful close by Billingsgate and London bridge, and some of the copper ones which have been recovered are as clean as new coins from the mint. Julius Caesar coins and weapons have been found in the upper river and some stone age implements down by Hampton court."—London Answers.

Weather Man.

There is no "thoroughly reliable weather man." The government "forecasts" are fairly safe for a certain number of hours, but as for the predictions that include the entire year, or any considerable part of it, they are not worth the paper they are printed on. They may be all right, they may be all wrong. Nobody knows which.

Daily Thought.

Apologies only account for that which they do not alter.—Disraeli.

The Christian Era.

The Christian era which we now use was fixed by Dionysius (surnamed The Little), a Roman abbot and one of the most learned men of the sixth century. Its epoch, or commencement, is the first day of January, on the fourth year of the one hundred and ninety-fourth olympiad, the seven hundred and fifty-third from the foundation of Rome and four thousand seven hundred and fourteenth of the Julian period. It is usually supposed to begin with the birth of Christ, but there are various opinions with regard to the year in which that event took place. The system accepted by the Christian world is that of Usher, which makes the date of the birth of Christ four years before the Christian era. The time for the Christian era was introduced in Italy in the sixth century and began to be used in Gaul in the eighth century, though it was not generally followed in that country until a century later. From extant charters it is known to have been in use in England before the close of the eighth century. Before its adoption the usual course in Latin countries was to distinguish the years by their number in the cycle of indiction, or tax levying era.—Philadelphia Press.

A Pleasant Time.

It was Thursday afternoon, and the housemaids were in great evidence on one of the trolley cars. Presently one of them came in and took her seat and at once discovered an acquaintance sitting opposite her. Leaning across the aisle, she said:

"Hello, Annie! Where you livin' now?"

"Oh, I'm workin' away out in the subu'bs now."

"Ain't it turrible lonesome out there?"

"No, not a bit. You see, the house is on a corner, and there is a church on the next corner and a fire engine house on the opposite corner and a police station on the other corner. Yesterday there was a funeral in the church, and the fire engine was called out three times, and two men was run into the station, all in one day. Then the couple I lives with don't git along very well. So, take it altogether, there's plenty doin' all the time, an' I never git a bit lonesome."—New York Tribune.

Force of Habit.

"Funny things happen, even on street cars," stated old Dad Bing. "Tuther day I got on one that was entirely empty, and at the next corner it stopped and let another gent on. He was a middle aged person with a faraway look in his eye, and instead of taking his choice of seats he grabbed a strap and hung there, swaying and flapping like a fresh caught fish.

"'I don't aim to be inquisitive, podner,' says I, 'but if it's a fair question why don't you set down?'

"'Why—why,' says he, 'I could do that, couldn't I? But, no, alas! It is too late to change the habits of a life time. I never saw an empty seat before!'

"So saying, he clung and swung clear downtown, and I went along just to look at him."—Kansas City Star.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 13, 1915.

Nobody expects a prize fighter to be much of a man outside of the ring, but "Jess" Willard seems to be an exception to the rule. Referring to the extravagant receptions which have been given him, he is reported as saying: "It all makes me sick." One must have a little native refinement to feel disgust at the adulations of the human cattle who worship pugilists. Willard also announces that he will fight no more negroes, and that he would not have met Johnson if it had not been necessary to win the championship. That indicates that he is not a born money-grabber. It is inadvisable under existing conditions, which everybody understands, to have battles between white and black men, and there never would have been any but for the fact that there was financial profit in promoting them.

The annual report of the State Commissioner of Public Health shows that the death rate in the metropolis for 1914 was 14 per 1,000 population, which is smaller than the rates in 41 out of the 52 up-State cities. It is also smaller than that of the State as a whole. Year after year a similar showing is made, and the fact is hard to explain in view of the fact that the rural population is free from unwholesome tenements and from the bitter poverty which is always present in crowded blocks. Moreover, in the country nearly everybody bathes at least once a week, while there are probably a million New Yorkers who never enjoyed a complete washing up. We cannot believe that the supposed benefits of fresh air and cleanliness are mere superstitions, but some explanation is called for. It is possible that the secret lies in the fact that the larger the town the more there is "going on," and that amusement is conducive to longevity.

In Kingston as well as in various other localities efforts are being made to secure subscriptions for stock in a New York newspaper which will be pledged to a pro-German and anti-English policy. It is hard to conceive of anything more foolish in the way of an investment. No periodical run solely for a partisan purpose has any influence, since it is precluded by the very terms of its existence from being fair. The public discounts all it says and regards its statements with doubt even when they are true. Such an organ may in a period of excitement acquire quite a circulation, but in the end it must vanish. Take for example a Republican or Democratic paper run by and in the interest of a political "boss," for whom it fights through thick and thin, right or wrong. Such a sheet is always on the verge of ruin, and finally topples over, and the cash invested is lost. The great trouble with our German-American friends is that they seek to justify each and every action of the German Government. Now, no nation, no more than any man, is always right, and whoever tries to maintain the contrary discredits his own sincerity and intelligence. If some of our German-Americans would publicly disapprove some of the indefensible acts of the "vaterland," their criticism of British faults would have more force.

There is something peculiarly silly in the persistent cry of representatives of the metropolis that they are compelled to pay an undue proportion of State taxes. It is not true, as Senator Wagner claims, that the city pays 75 or 80 per cent of the total tax. It does pay about 60 per cent thereof, and so it should. It has more than that share of the wealth and opportunities of the commonwealth. It draws its vast profits from the country, while the country gets relatively nothing from the city. The hundreds of millions which have been spent on the canal system have benefited the city primarily. The barges which float past a town do that town no good, but they make profitable business at their great terminal. It is the metropolis which fills our penal and charitable institutions and which gets the lion's share of the benefits of other great enterprises of the State. This being so, it comes with poor grace from a Tammany Senator to complain because the city pays a million and a third dollars toward the upkeep of country roads which are used by everybody. The large expense of this year's Constitutional Convention, which is wholly unnecessary, is due to the manipulated vote of the city. Senator Brown pithily said: "I supposed until tonight that New York City was part of the State of New York and that its citizens took some pride in the development of our great State." This narrowness which the Senator has just discovered was known to some of us long ago.

"CLEANING-UP" DAYS.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Do you realize that the sun is getting higher in the heavens every day, that cleaning-up time as at hand and that every city in our fair country ought to be granted the right to be beautiful, because so sweetly, wholesomely clean, and perhaps because so radiant with garden growth?

While interest attaches to the movement spreading all over the United States—indeed, all over the world—it is our home town for which we care the most, and though united civic art and grace of size count for much in the "city beautiful" idea, the indivdual must contribute his mite or the spirit and charm of it all will be missing.

When we think of the most beautiful city in the world we skip across the sea, in fancy, and stop at Paris or Venice or some of the quaintly pretty English towns so charmingly pictured by William Dean Howells. But, who knows, some day the palm may be granted to a fair American city.

If we might just close our eyes and think out, dream out, a city to our liking—it might have flaws, architecturally, probably practically, but whatever else it might miss in grace and dignity, there surely would be the repose and loveliness of trees, wide streets, tree-lined, parks alive with trees, mansions and cottages beautifully shaded by the same kindly friends.

Then there would be those little breathing spots of green dotted here and there, where tired folk, thoughtful folk and just folk, might rest and breathe in enough inspiration to send them on their way refreshed and strengthened.

And playgrounds galore, with never a sign, "Keep off the grass," would invite, heal and tone those of our little ones who have no friendly lawns, open spaces or even back yards in which to stretch themselves, grow strong and happy.

Not a vacant lot in that dream city would be running to waste, covered with old cans and refuse of varying sorts, but all would be turned over to amateur gardners, pledged to neatness, thrift and a luxuriant growth of vegetables.

And all the long rows of just-alike houses would fade away before the advent of homes big or homes little, but always with a bit of green and brilliant coloring about them, because we want a lot of beauty and a little rest time in that fair, dream city.

There would be, too, all the elements of wholesome gaiety that foster the humanities in its people, make them loyal to their city and never long to move away to some place more enterprising.

But that is only part of a dream-city, and meanwhile we are living in a town that is right fine, but may be made finer by individual effort. In a way, it seems a bit hopeless to look at some of our great cities, grown old and gray in ugliness and lack of uniformity, and, as we are unlikely to tear down, we can only act upon the theory that it is "a little leaven that leaveneth the whole lump."

But don't you remember that foolish story that has been repeated more or less concerning a witness in court, a woman, of course? When asked her age, volubility was thrown to the winds and she hesitated and hesitated in face of many repetitions of the question—"Your age, please?" Finally, in exasperation or despair, the judge gave the warning: "Hurry up, madame; every minute makes it worse."

And so in every city and hamlet, they will grow worse every year without the individual cleaning-up spirit ever at work.

The fostering of civic pride is something to encourage, but there must be a background of enthusiasm, linking one house with another, one front lawn inspiring another, one bit of space in the back encouraging the neighboring stretch of green and one festive spot where flowers grow, calling for another next door.

And here is where our women may come in and show what they can do, indeed, what they are doing in behalf of our "city beautiful." There is much in the inspiration of example, and if one ever has visited a town thoroughly imbued with the new spirit which makes neighbor vie with neighbor, friend with friend, the force of example has been pleasantly viewed.

But those awful little places that have not yet heard the still, small voice of civic conscience whispering, "Wake up!" They are depressingly dreary, and no wonder the young folk want to run away to a new town where beauty has taken hold and progress come to life.

And, you know, it is the green about our own doorway, the little house and lot of own own, that must be revived, if they need it.

Jonah and the Whale.

Perhaps one of the best illustrations of the wit of Father Healy is that contained in a story told by the eminent musician, Sir Charles Villers Stanford. Sir Charles was born in Dublin, and relates that one of the leading physicians, Dr. Meldon, was excessively corpulent. He could just squeeze himself into his brougham, and when he had done so there was no room for anyone else.

Father Healy was challenged one day by a skeptical friend, who had asserted that the good priest could not possibly believe in Jonah's incarceration in the whale.

"I don't know," said Healy. "I saw something quite as peculiar today. I saw Meldon getting out of—a fly."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Paid for the Blind.

A tradesman in a certain town put a box outside his shop one day, labeled For the Blind. A few weeks afterward the box disappeared.

"Hallo! What's happened to your box for the blind?" he was asked.

"Oh, I got enough money," he replied. "And," pointing upward to the new canvas blind that sheltered his shop window, "there's the blind. Not bad, is it?"—London Answers.

Practical.

Representative Anthony of Kansas is accredited with the story of an impious farmer who was decidedly ill. It was during the late fall that he took to his bed, and the physician having some doubts as to his recovery, received the ministration of a clergyman.

"You are close to the grave," said the clergyman, solemnly.

The ailing farmer showed little interest.

"We must all prepare," continued the clergyman, "at some time in our lives to meet the grim reaper."

Then the sick man sat up.

"Grim reaper?" he repeated.

The clergyman nodded.

"If you catch him around here," growled the farmer, "you put him out in the fields with the rest of the hands and he'll get his fill of reaping without bothering me!"—Washington Star.

Costly Method.

Andrew Carnegie, in a recent interview on peace, said to a New York reporter:

"A lad of twenty killed a man and woman in Serajevo. All Europe is now fighting to avenge this wrong. England alone is spending $35,000 a minute, according to Sidney Webb, on gunpowder.

"Well, this is such an expensive way to avenge a wrong that it reminds me of the man at the banquet.

"A man entered the cloakroom, at the end of the banquet, and began to smash in silk hat after silk hat.

"'Hold on, boss! Wot fo' yo smashin' all dem high hats?' demanded the attendant.

"'I'm looking for my own,' the gentleman answered. 'It's an opera hat—collapsible, you know. None of these seem to be it.'"—New York Times.

SYMPHONY CONCERT VERY SUCCESSFUL

Expectation ran high in musical circles in this city, over the Kingston Symphony Society orchestral concert which took place Monday evening at the Kingston Opera House, both in respect to the soloist, Samuel Gardner, and the orchestra itself, for it was well said that to produce such a program at all was a Herculean feat for any but an experienced orchestra. It was admitted on every side that the highest expectations were far surpassed by the excellence of the entire performance. For fineness of work, for delicate shading, for technical achievement, as far as the orchestra was concerned, Monday evening's program made far greater demands upon the musicians than any program which Conductor Muller has chosen before. Yet, so untiring, so effective so artistic has been the work of Mr. Muller, that these demands were met in a really artistic manner, that called forth from the soloist, who has this year played with the Damrosch orchestra and the Philadelphia orchestra, as well as in the Kneisel Quartet, astonished and enthusiastic commendation.

The program opened with that wonderful "Jupiter Symphony" by Mozart, his greatest Symphony, and by many considered the greatest Symphony in existence, next to the Beethoven Symphonies. No wonder that Mozart has been compared to Raphael in "beauty, refinement, pure harmony and real truthfulness!" The orchestra brought out the melodic beauty of the first movement, the "Allegro vivace," with beautiful tonal effect. In the romantic "Andante cantabile," they showed, under Conductor Muller's baton, a fine temperamental appreciation of the music, in their rendition of the same. The "Minuet and Trio Allegretto," were charmingly dainty and graceful. In the last, the magnificent summing up of the whole Symphony, the "Final. Allegro Molto," the orchestra outdid itself, in the clearness of its presentation of the fugal movement and the grand, dignified and impressive climax. It surely was a musical achievement to be proud of.

This composition of pure music was followed by a lovely piece of oriental music "Ballet Egyptien," by Luigini. This work, in four movements, is full of rich oriental coloring, fascinating mysticism, and rhythmic and melodic beauty and the orchestra proved that it could give an appreciative interpretation of this type of music, as well as of the more purely classic forms. It was charming.

It is strange that a work so admired and so well known as the Mendelssohn Concerto has had so little said about it by musical writers who have given us the annotated program of recent years, a musical education in themselves. Possibly this is due to the fact that the music is so emotional in character as to elude a purely analytical description. No wonder, therefore that Mr. Gardner, the soloist, highly complimented Howard Hendricks on his description of the work as found in the program of the concert. It has been said that this concerto possesses the lasting qualities of depth of feeling and genuine emotion, far more enduring than mere perfection of form, graceful though that form here is. Perhaps this very emotional quality made the work seem especially fitting fo Mr. Gardner the young American violinist of whom we may well be so justly proud, for it depicts no soft sentimentalism, but a real wealth of strength, tenderness and beauty.

Samuel Gardner was given a most cordial welcome as he appeared, almost boyish in his bearing, yet possessed of a dignity and seriousness that must always mark the real artist. With the first sweep of his bow across the strings, the audience were fascinated by the exquisite beauty and purity of tone, such as is all too rarely heard even from our noted artists of today. It was just as pure in the powerful passages of the first movement, as in the more delicate ones, and while the technique displayed in the cadenza was all that could be desired in even this day of technical virtuosity, it was not in this, but in the beautiful interpretation of the work, that Mr. Gardner held his audience spellbound. In the fervor of the "Andante," the soloist brought to his hearers a sense of the highest idealism, mounting into the realm of the spirit, that would have been almost too tense, had it not been followed by the sparkling lightness, the grace and sweep of the "Allegro molto vivace." No wonder this young American musician has been found worthy to be admitted to the inner circle of that unique organization, The Kneisel Quartet.

The audience showed their profound appreciation of Mr. Gardner's masterly performance by recalling him again and again. The beauty of the orchestral part of the concerto must also have its due share of praise. Inspired by the soloist, and prepared through hours of strenuous rehearsing, for the orchestra has had the music of the concerto only two weeks, every finest shade of expression, every nuance of tempo, were met by the orchestra as though it were indeed thinking and feeling with the soloist. It was really wonderful.

The finest program yet given by the Kingston Symphony Society was brought to a close with the brilliant and delightful overture to Weber's "Euryanthe," the repeated number of the concert, and it was indeed a brilliant finish to the evening's music.

A number of the prominent musical people of the city, after the concert, met Mr. Gardner at the Stuyvesant and chatted with him. This increasingly famed young violinist expressed himself as considering, work, work and then more hard work as the greater part of talent, in fact as almost creating talent. Said he, "When we all understand music as we should, and as we are going to in the future, we shall better understand life, and we shall all be better, broader men and women. Music in America can only attain the highest standard of beauty and perfection, by all of our sincere, earnest musical people, whether performers or listeners, working together, shoulder to shoulder to gain this end. When we broaden out enough to do this, there will be no room left for the petty jealousies and quibblings which now so often hinder the highest from coming to us." Surely by coming to Kingston entirely in the interest of good music in America, especially where being supported as here, Mr. Gardner has shown the breadth of his own musicianship and to the laudations of his audiences of yesterday will be added surely and loyally the affectionate regard of every member of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra.

Now just one word about the public rehearsal in the afternoon for the school children. Over two thousand tickets were distributed to the public and parochial schools, yet only two hundred and fifty tickets (ten cents each) were taken in at the opera house door, and some of those were presented by teachers and adults who could not come to the evening concert. That such an educational opportunity should so have been missed, overlooked, disregarded is beyond belief. Suppose the parents and educators of our community consider this matter before the next concert, lest some day our children rise up and say, "We did not know what we were missing. Why were we not instructed to attend those great concerts where we too might have learned to know and love the best in music?" One thing was remarkable in the audience that was present, however, and that was the breathless attention of practically every child there. But it must ever seem an unspeakable pity that any violin student in this whole city should have missed yesterday's public rehearsal, when it could have been attended with no financial self sacrifice on his or her part.

Kingston must well be proud of the Kingston Symphony Society Orchestra, George H. Muller, conductor.

May Irwin Coming.

The most popular of comediennes will appear at the opera house tomorrow night and will be seen in her new play, "No. 13 Washington Square, which is a dramatization of the novel of the same name by Leroy Scott. The name of May Irwin always suggests good natured fun making and it is said that in her new offering she has found a play that will give her most excellent opportunity in her especial faculty of provoking laughter. Those who have read the book will have no doubt in their minds that Mr. Scott's entertaining story will make a most capital comedy.

City Hall Improvements.

The work of improving the mayor's office at the city hall is being rushed to completion. It has been newly painted and new lights installed similar to those in the council chamber. Jarred His Dignity.

In one of the outlying districts in the Philippines there is an American schoolteacher known to fame as Mrs. Kelly. She has been one of the most successful teachers in all the islands and is beloved by her pupils and their parents. Mrs. Kelly's word has been law.

Newton W. Gilbert, ex-vice governor of the Philippines, is responsible for the assertion that the first sentence Mrs. Kelly ever taught her pupils nearly wrecked the dignity of the American government in the Philippines. Accordcording to the story, when W. Cameron Forbes, then governorgeneral, set out from Manila with his official retinue to make a tour of the islands he made an official visit to the "Kelly territory."

BOWED LOW IN UNISON.

Word of the visit was sent out far and wide, and when Governor Forbes arrived at the dock he found it thickly populated with chiefs and dattos in bright hued and more or less scanty garb who had come to pay their respects. Governor Forbes descended the gangplank with all the dignity and solemnity he could muster. Immediately the local dignitaries bowed low in unison and solemnly chanted, "Good morning, Mrs. Kelly."

The governor's official retinue clapped their hands to their mouths to stifle their laughter, while Governor Forbes balanced himself precariously on the narrow gangplank, trying to recover from the shock.—New York Post.

Nothing Good Is Lost.

No star is ever lost we once have seen.
We always may be what we might have been.
Since good, though only thought, has life and breath, God's life can always be redeemed from death;
And evil in its nature is decay.
And any hour can bolt it all away.
The hopes that lost in some far distance seem
May be the truer life and this the dream.
—Adelaide A. Procter.

A Ringing Reply.

A friend of Colonel Roosevelt is the father of six daughters, who have recently acquired a sailboat. One of the girls was showing the craft to the former president a short time ago when he said, with a puzzled frown:

"But I can't see the fitness of the boat's name—Chimes. Why did you call it that?"

"Oh," smiled the girl, "you see, it's named after us—Charlotte, Hortense, Isabel, Mildred, Elsie and Sylvia. We just used the first letters of our six names in order of age, and it happened that they spelled 'Chimes.'"

"Yes, yes; I see. Very appropriate," was the colonel's ready reply. "In fact, no name could be more so, in view of you girls being such belles."—Lippincott's.

Military Humor.

In the Manchurian campaign every correspondent in the field was strictly forbidden to send any private letter of any sort. But there was a Russian who got permission on the anniversary of his wedding to telegraph to his wife. "Dearest Marie," he wrote with Slavic fervor, "I send you 10,000,000 kisses," and the dispatch went out with this solemn annotation at the bottom, "With the sanction of the imperial military authorities."

Again, in South Africa, the young British soldiers used to wind up their letters to their sweethearts at home with a row of round marks like "o" —doubtless meant to signify kisses. These innocent marks upset the military censors mightily. Suppose they concealed a treasonable message in code? Finally a more ordinarily human and intelligent censor hit upon the expedient of making a great many more round marks after the others. That scotched the treasonable cipher if there was one, while, supposing there was none, then the girl at home got full measure of what was coming to her. Indeed, more than one dear young island thing, with a very undemonstrative lover down there in the veldt, must have been thrilled and surprised to receive a whole avalanche of kisses, nearly all of them, if she had but known it, the gift of the general staff.

Sandy's Vote.

An old bachelor residing in Aberdeen named Sandy, who earned his livelihood by selling firewood, had a donkey and a cart that he went his rounds with. He therefore had to hire a small shed for a stable at a rental of $20, this entitling him to a vote.

Hard times, however, began to tell on the sale of his firewood; so much so, in fact, that he had to dispose of his donkey and give up the stable.

On the polling night he made his way to the place of voting with the intention of recording his vote as usual.

The policeman in attendance told him his name was not on the electors' list that year, and at this Sandy flared up and angrily asked for an explanation. The policeman said:

"Aweel, Sandy, ye see, ye hinna got the donkey noo."

"Oh, aye, I see; it was the donkey that had the vote an' no' me!" replied Sandy earnestly.—Dundee Advertiser.

Save Baby From Gorilla.

According to Doctor Livingstone, the gorilla sometimes picks up a negro baby and carries it about. The natives rescue it in rather an ingenious way. They place a large bunch of bananas in the way of the gorilla, which seizes them with both hands and lets the baby drop. Had the baby been one of its own kind it would have clung to its nurse. But, being a human baby, it naturally falls, so that the rescuers can drive away the animal and carry off their prize.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The wedding of Miss Amy Amelia Reynolds, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel Reynolds, and John Asa DuBois of Marlborough, will take place at the home of the bride in Tarrytown on Tuesday evening, April 20.

The Knights of Columbus will celebrate the first anniversary of the building of their handsome new home on Broadway on Monday evening when an appropriate program will be given followed by a dance. The committee in charge is arranging for a very pleasant and enjoyable evening and every member of the order should bear the date in mind. Each member will be allowed to bring his wife or if he is not married his lady friend. The entertainment will consist of a vaudeville performance by talented local amateurs and at the close a dance will be held. The event promises to be one that will long be remembered by the members of the order.

Kijkuit Club Tonight.

Tonight the members of Kijkuit Club of St. John's Church will meet at the home of Miss Helena Clearwater, No. 40 Washington avenue, for a social evening.

Hunt-Houghtaling.

Miss Phoebe Houghtaing and Clarence Hunt were married in Middletown on Monday by the Rev. R. W. Lake of Westtown. The bride is a resident of Pine Bush.

Federation Executives.

The executive committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs will meet on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. M. J. Michael. A full attendance is desired.

Decker-Whalen.

Miss Dora F. Whalen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whalen, and Arthur B. Decker were married on Saturday evening in Walden by the Rev. Father Francis G. Lenes. They were attended by Miss Anna Grattan of Walden and William O'Neil of Rosendale.

Twaalfskill Club Election.

The annual meeting of the Twaalfskill Club was held at the office of Judge Clearwater, its president, on Monday evening. Frank Coykendall, whose term of governor expired, was re-elected for the full term, and Rodney B. Osterhoudt was elected governor to fill the unexpired term created by the death of Harry S. Coykendall. The club house, golf links and tennis courts were reported to be in fine condition, the greens and golf links having wintered well, and the outlook indicated a brilliant season. The by-laws were amended so as to provide that no person living within thirty miles of the club house should be admitted to non-resident membership in the club. When the club was organized, fourteen years ago, the limit as to non-residents was ten miles, but the increased use of automobiles has made it imperative to enlarge the territory.

Woman's Exchange Meeting Held.

At the annual meeting of the associate members of the Woman's Exchange held on Monday, Mrs. George Chandler was relected president of the board of managers.

Although the exchange has always been run as a cash business, it has been the custom heretofore of keeping memorandum slips of goods purchased on a few days credit as an accommodation to customers. It has been decided to discontinue this practice absolutely. Hereafter everything purchased at the exchange must be for cash, and there will be positively no exception to this rule. The exchange has no capital, keeps no ledger, employs no bookkeepers, and is doing business on such a small margin that every cent taken in is needed to meet expenses the first of each month. The running of numerous small memorandum accounts has resulted sometimes in an embarrassing situation for the managers.

The exchange is well established, has a splendid patronage, an attractive shop, and furnishes a market for the work of over 70 women of the city who are self supporting. It is a useful and philanthropic institution growing up with the city to mark its advancement in uplifting its own people, which in itself is a sign of civic development and growth.

Charity Ball Patrons.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Sanitarium, who have been working so faithfully to make the coming charity ball a success, announce that all arrangements have at last been completed.

The orchestra, donated for the occasion by the Musicians' Union, will give a concert beginning at 8 o'clock and continuing until 9. Immediately following this concert Miss Shultz will give exhibitions of two of the most popular of the new and aesthetic dances—the Chopin mazurka and the La Varsovienne. Harry P. Dodge has kindly consented to act as accompanist and the combination of Miss Shultz's graceful and artistic dancing and Mr. Dodge's exceptional skill as a pianist should indeed prove irresistible.

General dancing will begin at 9 o'clock ceasing at 10 o'clock, when Miss Shultz will dance what is perhaps the most successful and popular of all the dances in her repertoire. This will be the Valse Orientale and again she will be accompanied by Mr. Dodge, whose interpretation of this number—filled with the glamor and romance of the east—is said to be especially brilliant.

From then on general dancing will continue until the small hours of the morning.

At Trinity Church Fair.

The annual fair of Trinity M. E. Church opened very auspiciously at noon today when a delicious and substantial dinner was served to a large number of patrons. This evening and tomorrow evening an entertainment in which forty of the children will participate, will be given. On Wednesday evening from 5 to 8 o'clock a supper will be served. Preparations for the fair have been in progress for many weeks, and the room in which it is held is decorated to represent an old-fashioned garden, with many bargain booths.

Gold is good in its place; but living, brave and patriotic men are better than gold.—Lincoln.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs Friederich Reinhardt and family wish to express their most profound thanks and deepest gratitude to all neighbors and friends who did so many acts of kindness during the sickness and death of our beloved father; also for the elegant floral tributes sent in. We will ever cherish their memory.

WALL PAPERS !

Our stock of wall decorations this Spring is more satisfactory than ever before in price, quality and design. The wide range of prices from FIVE CENTS THE DOUBLE ROLL to FIVE DOLLARS and more makes it possible for every one to be pleased. Many of our so-called CHEAP PAPERS are cheap really in price only, for in quality and artistic effect they often equal or even excel those of high grade.

To see a design on a small piece of paper is a very unsatisfactory way of deciding what the effect of that design is to have on an entire room.

EXHIBITIONS RACKS recently placed in our Wall Paper Department obviate this difficulty. In this modern way one may practically see the room completed with the wall paper under consideration.

Of course, we have a large number of sample books which we shall gladly send to those who prefer to select their papers in their own homes but, we much prefer to feel that our customers will be pleased with their selections and the only way to assure them satisfaction is to ask them to visit our second floor and see WHOLE ROOMS, as it were, rather than a small sample.

Go Blundering On.

The whole universe goes blundering on, but surely arrives. Collisions and dispersions in the heavens above and failure and destruction among living things on the earth below, yet here we all are in a world good to be in! It is as if the creator played his right hand against his left—what one loses the other gains.—John Burroughs.

Vote for No-Mor-Dust

Think of it! There's a new way to sweep without raising dust. You don't even have to close the door of the room you're cleaning—you can dust the ornaments, furniture, etc., first, then leave them uncovered, and they'll be as clean when you finish sweeping as before.

And it's so simple, too! Just spread a little Nomordust sweeping compound across the room and then sweep it ahead of you as you go. Not only will it get your floor cleaner than you could possibly without it, but it doesn't allow a particle of dust to fly. Nomordust collects the dirt—ordinary sweeping spreads it.

Nomordust is fine for your rugs and carpets. It brings out the colors and makes them look like new. Equally good for wood floors and linoleums.

But this is not all. Nomordust saves half the effort and time of sweeping and you only have to sweep half as often to keep your house even cleaner than it has ever been before.

This is because you get all the dust every time you sweep—it clings to the powder.

One Nomordust user says that it's just like keeping an extra maid; she has so much time now for pleasure. Yet Nomordust costs but a few pennies a month.

Get a 10c can from your grocer today and try it. Money back if not more than pleased. 5

A SHORT WORD

but a word that spells goodfellowship, enjoyment and refreshment is that little word "Beer." So many people think all beer is made about the same; that's a great mistake. The beer that bears our brand is of the best quality, has more life to it and more nourishment, than any other beer brewed. Try it the next time you drink.

Children's Clothing Needed.

The attention of Mrs. Scott Gillespie of the Sunshine Society, has been called to a case of special need in a family where the mother is blind, the father a drunkard, and five children are practically destitute of clothing. Garments of every sort are needed for a baby ten months old, and also for boys five, eight, ten and thirteen years of age. Persons having clothing to help out in this case of dire need are asked to send them at once to Mrs. Gillespie.

No "Fixed Star."

The phrase "fixed star" is a misnomer. There is no such thing. All the millions of stars one sees in the vault of the sky, and millions vastly more millions, revealed by telescopy and photography, with undoubted uncountable other millions of millions, billions of billions, in the universes of the infinite beyond, have their movements, whether in groups or whether by single suns each, with its retinue of sun and its few known planets.

To Kill Limburger Scent.

A Pennsylvania cheesemaker is authority for the statement that it is the outside of limburger cheese that smells objectionably—that if this part is cut off in chunks, sliced and given a few seconds' immersion in hot water the smell will be destroyed, leaving the taste unimpaired. The inside of the cheese, he says, needs no treatment.

BRITISH AIRMEN BOMBARD FLANDERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, April 13.—British airmen have bombarded Bruges, Antwerp and a number of the railway lines that run through West Flanders. A number of missiles were dropped upon the German concentration camp at Bruges on Monday and much damage was done to the railway lines, thus hampering the movement of German troops and supplies.

It just has come to light that a daring British aviator using a Taube aeroplane, which was captured from the Germans, flew over Antwerp and dropped a number of projectiles. As a result of this ruse the German aviators now signal to each other with colored fire-arrows to prevent further operations of the British in the captured Taubes.

Artillery duels are reported from West Flanders, the district south of the Lys river, the Aisne valley, the Champagne region and the Woevre district.

The German army in the Woevre has been reinforced with thousands of recruits drawn from the fortress of Metz, where they were in training.

Although the Germans delivered half a dozen attacks in the sector of Albert, the war office states that the French lost no ground there. German night attacks were repulsed with heavy loss of life.

Small damage was done to Nancy by the German aerial bombardment. Nancy lies on the Moselle, 27 miles south of Metz and some distance from the arena of actual fighting.

Many hundreds of 1916 French reservists passed through Paris yesterday and today on their way to join their regiments. They are the youngest class, many of them being not more than 18 or 19 years old.

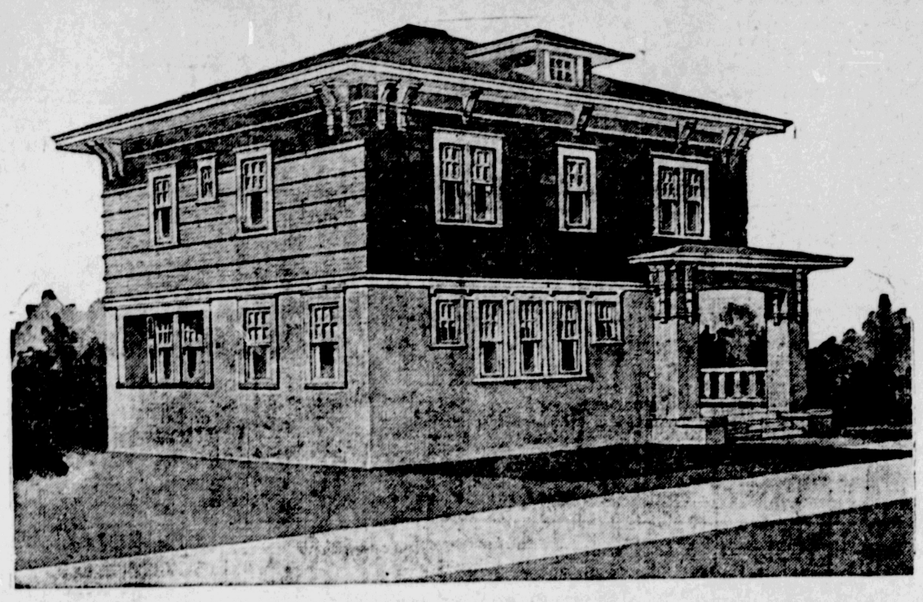
Public Morality.

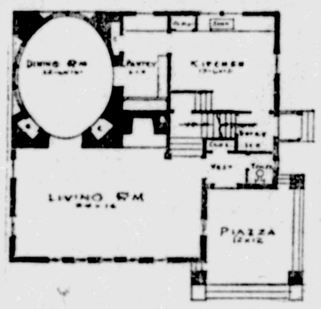
I have not the slightest regard for that statesmanship which is divorced from the morality which we say ought to guide us in our private life, which we gather for a nation as for individuals from the religion we profess. Time, persistent labor, fidelity to the great principles which we hold and believe in, will give us the victory over existing evils.—John Bright.

An Eight Room Cottage of Dignified Design (No. 108)



This is a square type of house of attractive design that has much to recommend it to the particular home seeker. Such a model is economical to build, and due to its straight lines gives the maximum of room for the money expended.

The design shows a plain dignified exterior that appeals to one looking for a harmonious house in good architectural taste. The first story is of rough cast stucco, with shingle effect above, ornamented with band mouldings laid about two feet apart. A less expensive though more commonplace treatment may be secured by laying the shingles the ordinary way, 4½ inches to the weather. The massive square entrance columns of stucco and broad cement steps leading to the piazza, the floor of which is of solid cement, are handsome architecturally, and carry the impression of substantial worth.



The first floor plan is designed to give the maximum amount of space for living room purposes. This is accomplished by eliminating the usual staircase hall, and making the entrance through a vestibule direct into the living room. A combination enclosed staircase leading from both the living room and kitchen provides access to the second floor for family and maid. The living room conforms fully with the accepted present day idea, extending the entire front of the house, the dimensions being 14x24 feet. A handsome recessed fireplace is so placed as to leave this entire spacious room in the clear. Group windows on the front—three full windows and two half—as well as three others on the sides of the room, provide the maximum of light without curtailing wall space too much. A novel feature of the first floor arrangement is the elliptical dining room designed as the show place of the living floor.

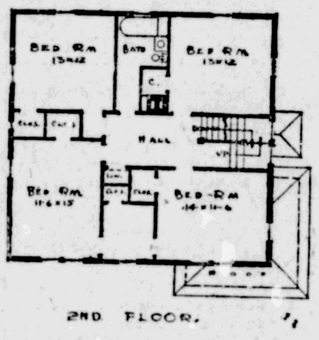
It is reached through French doors from the living room, and calls for a high panelled wainscot finish throughout. Deep embrasured windows and two handsome china closets complete a room of unusual elegance and charm. Of course if one's taste in dining rooms is simpler, this room could be built as a rectangle at a considerable saving in cost.

A splendidly located pantry and ample kitchen fully equipped, separate entrance to which is gained through a vestibuled side door completes the first floor arrangement.

The second floor plan shows four chambers, all of generous size, a cozy little sewing room that is accessible from either front chamber, and that could be used as a dressing room, five ample clothes closets, as well as a well located bath room and linen closet. Provision is made on the third floor for a maid's room if desired.

The basement extends under the entire house, except the recessed portion of the piazza, and gives ample room for heating plant, storage, laundry and vegetable room.

For detailed plans and estimate of cost consult any local architect or builder whose adv. appears on this page.



Laughter.

An old writer, John Bulwer, in his "Pathomyotomia" (1649), says: "But true laughter hath both the effects of the intellectual part as the principle upon which the dilatation of the heart and contraction of the countenance ensue, it being not only an affection of the body, but totius conjunct of the whole man."

Department Store Asset.

In an undertaking like a department store the satisfaction and pride of the women and girls in the place is recognized as one of its real assets. There have been frequent demonstrations of the injury that thoughtless and heartless treatment of women can do a business if this is noised abroad.—Ida M. Tarbell in the American Magazine.

Nimrod.

It is impossible, at this late date, to say very much about Nimrod, either as to when he lived or what he did. The "mighty hunter before the Lord" may have been a historical character, but at any rate we know very little of him. All that we know of him is found in the tenth chapter of Genesis.

STANDING TIMBER.

Rule by Which to Figure Out Its Contents in Board Feet.

The contents of trees in board feet is usually figured by Doyle's rule. This rule is to deduct four inches from the small diameter of the log for slab, squaring one quarter of the remainder and multiplying the results by the length of the log in feet. For example, to find the contents of a twelve foot log twenty-four inches in diameter (inside the bark) at the small end—24 inches minus 4 inches equal 20 inches; 20 inches by ¼ equal 5 inches; 5 by 5 by 12 equal 300 board feet.

Perhaps an easier way to get at the same result is to state the rule as follows: From a sixteen foot log deduct four inches for slab and square the remainder. For longer or shorter logs the contents would be proportioned to the length. In the above case it would be worked out thus: 24 minus 4 equals 20, 20 by 20 equals 400, for a sixteen foot log. But a twelve foot log is twelve-sixteenths or three-quarters as long as a sixteen foot log; therefore this log contains three-quarters of 400 board feet, or 300, board feet. If the log were twenty feet long it would contain one and one-quarter times 400 feet, or 500 feet.

A common way of estimating standing timber is to estimate the length and the top and bottom diameters and apply Doyle's rule, using the average of both diameters and the whole length of the tree.—Rural New Yorker.

The Plantagenets.

A flowering English shrub, the broom plant, is called in French "plantagenesta." From it the kingly family of Plantagenet took its name. It is said to have been first used as a badge by them because the Count of Anjou had himself scourged with its branches. The name was taken by Henry II., king of England, in 1154, he being the son of Geoffrey of Anjou, who wore in his helm a spray of the broom when he started for the Holy Land. The best known of the Plantagenets was Richard I., king of England, called "the Lion Heart."

Very Queer.

"My husband has been out late every evening this week, attending important club meetings."

"Yes, so has mine. They belong to the same club, you know."

"Why, how queer! My husband says he hasn't seen your husband in six months!"—Cleveland Leader.

INDIAN MUTINY CASUALTY LIST

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 13.—The Indian mutiny which broke out at Singapore on February 15, resulted in the death of 54 persons and the arrest of 614. Two of those killed were executed by the British authorities after the mutiny had been quelled by the Twenty First regiment. Eleven other mutineers are missing and are believed to have been drowned along with a number of others while trying to cross Johore straits.

The foregoing information was contained in a detailed official statement given out by the government press bureau today.

The signal for the uprising was the firing of a gun in the guard room of the Fifth light infantry.

It had been unofficially reported by travellers that many secret executions were taking place in Singapore and that "hundreds of Sikhs had been killed in street fighting," but the official statement showed these to be greatly exaggerated.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 13.—After irregular changes at the opening, pronounced strength developed in many stocks this morning and a number of issues made vigorous advances in the first 15 minutes. Bethlehem Steel continued prominent, rising 3 points to 127, a new high record, with a reaction to 124¾ after this upturn. Great Northern Ore continued in good demand, moving up 1½ to 40⅝, the highest price touched in several years. Substantial gains were made in American Cotton Oil, Missouri Pacific and Amalgamated Copper. There was evident accumulation of Missouri Pacific which rose ⅝ to 16½ with the buying apparently based on the quiet inquiry for the short term notes, which so far has failed to reach any substantial supply. Rock Island moved up a point to 35¼, and Union Pacific advanced ½ to 129¾. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred, which weakened yesterday under liquidation, supposed to be connected with the Bethlehem Steel movement, rose 2½ to 69¾, with the buying again accompanied by persistent statement of an announcement being close at hand in regard to the dividend position on this stock.

Noon—There was a strong tone to the market in the late forenoon, many of the leading issues making substantial gains. Most of the interest was attached to Bethlehem Steel, which advanced to 139½, a total gain of 13½ points for the morning session. The crowd in this stock was the largest in the room. U. S. Steel advanced ¾ to 56⅝ and Amalgamated Copper 1¾ to 69½. Great Northern Ore continued in good demand, advancing 2½ to 41⅝. Missouri Pacific rose ¼ to 16¼. American Smelting made a gain of ⅞; Interborough Met. ⅝; United States Rubber, ¾ and Mexican Petroleum 2 points to 76½. Moderate gains were made in Union Pacific, Reading, Erie, National Lead and Utah Copper. In the last 15 minutes of trading Westinghouse Electric made a gain of 1¼ points to 78¼. Money loaning at 2¼ per cent.

2:30 p. m.—Practically all interest centered upon the vigorous trading in Bethlehem Steel during the last hour. In the first half of the last hour this issue rose to 151½ and then dropped back to 150. The entire list was influenced by the terrific bull movement in Bethlehem Steel. Union Pacific sold around 130⅛ against 129 at the opening. Utah Copper sold up to 62 for a net gain of 2½. Westinghouse was in demand selling around 78⅞ for a gain of 1⅞ from the opening. The tone was strong.

The stock market closed nervous; governments unchanged; other bonds steady.

EXPLOSION IN NAVAL STATION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 13.—Dispatches from Aberdeen telling of an explosion at Lerwick, capital of the Shetland Islands in which many persons were killed, were followed today by rumors that a German spy had blown up the Royal Naval Reservation station at Lerwick.

As soon as news of the explosion reached here the government took over the telegraph lines into Scotland, making it difficult to secure any details of the disaster.

At least five persons were killed and more than forty hurt, many of them fatally, in the terrific explosion at Lerwick today. A press agency dispatch from there says:

"An explosion occured in a store near the fish market. Fire followed causing a tremendous explosion of gun-cotton in the naval station. Many houses were destroyed and the fish market gutted by fire. Four men and a boy were blown to pieces and more than forty hurt."

BETHLEHEM STEEL CRAZE STILL ON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 13.—Bethlehem Steel stock made a new high record on the stock exchange today selling up to 149, a gain of 40½ points over Monday's low mark. In the early afternoon sales for quick profits caused a recession of about 3 points.

Up to 1 p. m. 22,400 shares had been traded in and the low mark of the day, up to that time was 123½. A considerable part of the trading was in 100 share lots and some of it represented covering by shorts, while a percentage suggested accumulation for investment.

Wild fluctuations attended dealings in Bethlehem Steel in the final trading on the stock market today. After reaching 155 for a new high record on a sky-rocket drive skyward, the issue dropped as rapidly as it rose and was selling at 125 when the market closed. The dealings in Bethlehem Steel were attended by the wildest excitement on the floor of the exchange.

The Fishermen.

Herring have begun running up the river, preceding the shad. On Monday night Thomas Major of Eddyville made the first real catch when he succeeded in landing eight. Large catches of suckers are also being made at that point.

Trout fishermen are not reporting big catches, owing to the muddy water caused by the recent heavy rains, although the season has been open for several days. Some catches are reported but for the most part they are limited in number.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

George Bradt fathered the fight game in Havana, but it looks as if his offspring is going to kick him in the ribs. Bradt went to a lot of expense in building an open air arena. But the crowds won't come.

Bradt, who is a game sportsman, had sunk a lot of money in trying to get the Cubans interested in pugilism, but so far he has not met with any degree of success. During the two weeks that preceded the Johnson-Willard fight, Bradt staged some fine bills almost nightly. He mixed the bouts nicely, pitting a Cuban against an American whenever he could find a good Cuban. But the natives weren't interested.

The bulk of the attendance at the fights which Bradt staged was composed of American visitors. The house very rarely drew more than 300 admissions, although the stadium that Bradt built will seat 12,000. Bradt had to pay the fighters that he got from America some big guarantees and so far has not pulled off a winning card.

* * * *

The kidney punch, used in clinches, is a mighty effective punch in a finish fight, and it looks to the spectator as if it hurts the puncher more than the punched when the bouts are limited to six, ten or twelve pounds.

The kidney punch is used to wear down a foe. It rarely begins to weaken a fighter before the fifteenth or twentieth round while the man who delivers it weakens himself and loses some of his stamina by delivering it.

* * * *

Bat Nelson, who has opened a boxing club in Havana with his manager, Jack Robinson, committed what might be called a social, as well as a business error some time back.

Bat loves to eat—and he loves to eat American cooking. He sleuthed all around Havana for several weeks but failed to find a place where they doled out anything but Cuban cookery. And then the turn came.

Bat wandered down a narrow side street one day and discovered a nice looking eatery. He walked in and ordered American food. He got it. He got ham and eggs and like they cook 'em in the U. S. A., and he got apple pie that was far superior to mama's brand.

The next day Bat jumped into a Cuban newspaper gent and told him of the discovery.

"Say, that hotel —— is the only joint in this burg where they give you good grub," said Bat. "All the other joints hand you awful chuck."

In the course of time the interview appeared in some of the Cuban organs, and the next day Manager Jack Robinson had to quiet a hundred and fifty excited inn keepers who resented Bat's remark.

Crescents Lost at Rosendale.

Although the weather conditions which prevailed on Sunday afternoon were not favorable for a good game of baseball yet the Rosendale boys succeeded in administering a sound thrashing to the Crescents of this city. The game only went six innings and was called on account of rain with the score 11 to 3 in favor of Rosendale. Myers, Flemming and O'Neil were in the points for Rosendale and Schoonmaker and Baylor done the honors for the Crescents but were unable to stop the batting streak of the Rosendale boys.

MANY BALL PLAYERS WASTE THEIR TIME

President John K. Tener of National League and Clark Griffith, Manager of Washington Nationals.

That the ball player of today does not make the most of his opportunities is the opinion of Malachi Kittredge, the old time catcher, now engaged in business in Cleveland.

"The big league ball player," says Kittredge, "has the easiest job there is. He does not even have to pack his uniform. That is done for him at the clubhouse. His hand baggage is taken to the train for him. He rides in a lower berth. Arriving at another town, he is met by a taxicab while his baggage is taken to the hotel in a wagon. He does not even have to write his name on the hotel register. He finds his room and a good one with bath reserved for him.

"He has nothing to do except to report at the grounds at 2 p. m., practice and then take part in the game. His evenings are his own as are his mornings, except at home, when some clubs have practice sessions. He has more idle time upon his hands than any man engaged in any other profession, yet he fails to take advantage of it by fitting himself for some other profession or business to take up when his baseball days are over.

"The average player when on the road mornings, takes walks, plays cards or sits around the hotel lobbies fanning. Evenings you can find him either at some theater or playing pool, billiards or cards. If he were to devote some of his time to study, he would be preparing himself for the future. Of course, he cannot study too much and run the risk of injuring his eyes, but an hour a day would not hurt him and when he quits baseball he would find himself well advanced on some other profession."

Then Kit shifted the topic of conversation. He does not relish the oft-printed story that the old-time baseball player was a rough-neck, not to be compared to the college-bred player of today.

"I guess they forget about the famous old Chicago White Sox," says Kittredge. "Of that team, John K. Tener became governor of Pennsylvania and president of the National league; Anson was county clerk of Cook county, which means Chicago; Mark Baldwin is a famous surgeon in Pittsburgh; Ad Gumbert was sheriff of Pittsburgh; Hutchinson, the great pitcher, is a railroad official out West; Walter Wilmot is a banker in Minneapolis, and Clark Griffith is pretty well up in the baseball game.

"And the White Sox didn't have them all, either. Take your Cleveland team here. Chief Zimmer did well in business. So did Jim McAleer. Patsy Tebeau has been successful in business in St. Louis; Cy Young acquired a small fortune, well invested, while George Tebeau and Jesse Burkett have stuck to the game as magnates and done well. In fact, I think if you would investigate you would find that the majority of the old-timers have done well since quitting the game, indicating that they were not the rowdies the later day writers would have the public believe."

IS STAR SOUTHPAW TWIRLER

"Rube Benton of Cincinnati Reds Began His Professional Career With Class D Team.

J. C. ("Rube") Benton, the big southpaw twirler of the Cincinnati National league club, was born in Clinton, N. C., June 27, 1890. He began his professional career with the Macon team of the South Atlantic league in 1910, and proved a sensation. Several clubs bid for his services, but he finally went to the Reds for $7,500, an unusual price at that time for a Class D player. The Rube lacked experience and was sent to Chattanooga in 1911, where he was not only a leading pitcher but outclassed the league heavers in striking out batsmen. He returned to the Reds in the fall and has been with them since.

"Rube" Benton of Cincinnati.

Summer of 1913 he was injured in a motorcycle accident and was suspended for the balance of the season, as an object lesson, as he had apparently forgotten the fact that he was being paid for playing ball and not for joy riding every night. Benton stands six feet one inch in height and weighs 185 pounds.

Harmon Invents New Curve.

Pitcher Bob Harmon of the Pirates says he has invented a new curve after three years of experimenting which will make his work much more effective. If he is much more effective than he was last season games in which he takes the mound might as well be forfeited by opposing teams.

NOTES of the DIAMOND

The Memphis club of the Southern league has taken on the veteran Orville Woodruff.

* * *

* * *

Pitcher Alfred (Red) Nelson has found another berth. News comes from Des Moines that he has signed with Frank Isbell.

* * *

Apparently a major league season can't be run without an O'Connor behind the bat. The Phillies have a youngster of the name.

* * *

Cleveland's slogan is "the Sixth City," and the Cleveland ball club seems to be trying to keep them at that stage or below it.

* * *

Old Grant Rice declares Johnny Evers is fat; now we expect to hear that King Cole has taken a job as the fat lady in a museum.

* * *

B. B. Johnson says some of the minor leagues should shut up for the season and most of the minor leagues say Johnson should shut up for all time.

* * *

George Stallings says he fears the Giants most in the National league race. Rabbis Maranville says the Cubs and the Cardinals will give the Braves the rub.

* * *

Manager John McGraw, it is said, will keep Eddie Grant and Fred Brainard as utility infielders, two being all he will be able to carry under the 21-man rule.

* * *

Joe Tinker is teaching his recruits not to pull away from the plate—proving that some people still think it possible to make a horse drink after leading him to it.

* * *

Pitcher George Foster of the Boston Red Sox is developing a knuckle ball and with it added to his repertoire expects all the games he works in to be shutouts.

* * *

It has been figured out by some patient calculator that the National league baseball clubs will travel 83,593 miles during the regular league season this year.

* * *

Arthur Irwin, in behalf of the Lewiston club of the New England league, has purchased three players from the Peterson club of the now defunct Atlantic league. They are Bill Estes, Johnny Kull and Andy Smith.
